Each Motor Boat Has An Equal Chance In The Celebration Parade July 4th

Democratic Candidate Will Speak Tonight

Robt. W. Jennings, democratic nominee for Delegate to Congress from Alaska, returning from Ketchikan via the west coast mail routes, arrived at Wrangell Wednesday afternoon on the Uncle Dan and will speak tonight at the Red Men's Hall.

Arrangements Started For Big Celebration

The corner stone was laid Monday evening for the best Independence Day celebration ever witnessed in Wrangell by the appointing of a general committee to start the ball rolling with securing subscriptions of funds to meet the expenses of the day. The general committee consisting of J. G. Grant, C. H. Borch and C. M. Coulter was appointed by a hastily arranged gathering of citizens after the Fire meeting Monday evening. J. E.

Worden was elected chairman and on motion appointed the committee Chas. Benjamin was chosen secretary for the meeting. The general committee was appointed with power to appoint sub-committees and as soon as the subscriptions are secured announcements of the feature events will be made.

Although the "fireworks" meeting was not widely advertised the time for action is too short to admit of further delay and it may be from this prompt action that Wrangell people will be enabled to realize the hope for the "best ever" celebration that 1912 prospects promise.

Kissing Under the Mistletoe.
The custom of kissing under the mistletoe is so old that it would be useless to attempt to tell just when or how it originated. There is a very ancient Scandinavian legend which tells us that one of the goddesses who loved Baldur, the god of light, upon that god's restoration to life after he had been killed by an arrow of mistletoe wood shot by the bad god Loke, kissed all who passed under the plant as a token that it was no longer a weapon of death, but a symbol of love. The custom of kissing under the mistletoe is almost as old as the Scandinavian, Germanic and Anglo-Saxon peoples themselves.—New York American.

New Feature Announced by Committee

All gasboats will have equal chance in competing for generous prize.

A new feature will be added to the celebration this year in the way of a parade of decorated motorboats is the latest announcement of the general committee in charge of the celebration. The parade, which will be held on the evening of the 3d or 4th as the program is arranged, will be of decorated motor craft and for a generous prize. Motorboat prizes in the past have all been awarded to the speedy but this latest feature gives the slowest boat an equal chance with the fleet in competing for a prize.

Firemen Meet

Seven New Members Elected

Alert Fire Company No. 1 met Monday evening with a good representation of members present. The regular order of business was rapidly run through; the committee appointed to ascertain the representatives chosen by the businessmen was given more time so that all the picked team might be induced to join the Company.

The added interest taken in the Company's work seems to be expressed in the number of new members being taken into the Company. Seven new members were elected Monday evening; the list being as follows: A. Engstrom, N. L. Moen; J. H. Lyon, Chas. Benjamin; J. D. Nordyke, W. D. Grant and Harry Coulter.

Under the head of "For the Good of the Order" H. Gartley made several able yet unsuccessful attempts to secure for the Company, as a mascot; Ensley's "only" horse. The matter may be taken up again at the next meeting.

Exploit the Stikine

Familiarity with danger breeds contempt. Similarly living in close proximity with the Stikine River, which is said by those who know, offers scenery that rivals the Alps in grandeur and furnishes a greater variety, breeds a disregard of the advantages of the scenic attractions by the average citizen. There may be more people who appreciate the Stikine than appears to a casual observer but the time has come when the outside world should be informed of the attractions lying in wait of the progressive tourist that enters the easily accessible Stikine. The time is passed when a voyage up the river meant many hardships in the way of canoe and dog team travel. Through the lure of precious metals and pelts contained in the mountains and forests, the travel has warranted the establishment of permanent transportation facilities which are now furnished by steam and gas operated river craft that negotiate the distance between Wrangell and the head of navigation in good time and afford the comforts of travel in settled districts although in Alaska, the last frontier in the United States domain. Wrangell, the key to the Stikine district, will reap the harvest offered by the recognition of the resources and scenic attractions of district. The benefits are sure to come and an effort should be made NOW to exploit the Stikine so that the present generation may begin the harvest. In the absence of a Commercial Club, the burden rests with the individual and each citizen should recognize the duty and begin to boost today.

Seeks Information

Deputy Marshal, Schnabel is in receipt of a letter from a Denver, Colorado police officer who is in quest of information concerning the location of his son, Edward P. Connor, who was last heard from in Seattle three years ago this month and whom is believed to have come into Alaska. The son is now 26 years of age, 5 ft. 11 in. tall, has blue eyes and dark brown hair. Has worked six years in drug stores. Any information will be gladly forwarded to the parents by the Marshal.

Carlyle and Black.
An amusing anecdote of Carlyle told in Allingham's diary, is also mentioned in his letters. William Black wrote to Allingham that it had always been one of the ambitions of his life "to see Carlyle face to face," and asking the poet to try to arrange for a five minutes' interview. Allingham brought about the desired meeting, at which Carlyle's inquiry, "Well, sir, and when are you going to seriously set about writing a book?" must have astonished the popular novelist.—London Nation.

Leap Years.

Leap year, it has been complained by some one, seems to have been named on the same principle as the "Meeting of the Waters" at Killarney, which is a place where two streams do not meet, but part. A leap year ought to be a year in which we jump over a day—a 364 day year. One explanation is that all the days after Feb. 29 jump forward one day in the week more than usual. The Romans used to call it a "bissextile year," and the French still do so.—Chicago News.

Flexible English.

Some of the peculiarities of the English language are amusingly shown in the following little dialogue:

"You'll get run in," said a pedestrian to a wheelman without a light.

"You'll get run into," savagely responded the cyclist as he knocked the pedestrian down.

"You'll get run in, too," said a policeman, stepping from behind a tree.

And just then another searcher came along without a light, so the policeman ran in two.—London Mail.

ROBERT W. JENNINGS

OF JUNEAU

Nominated by the Democrats as Candidate for Delegate From Alaska

Born, November 10, 1865, in Nashville, Tennessee. Acquired an education at Harvard by working his way through College as a private tutor. In 1885 obtained a clerkship in Washington, D. C. through a competitive civil service examination; worked at his desk during the day and studied law at night at the Georgetown Law School. Emigrated to the West in 1888, located at Port Townsend Washington; City Attorney of Port Townsend, County Attorney of Jefferson County, Washington, and candidate of the Democratic party for Judge of the counties of Jefferson, Clallam and Island in said state. Came to Alaska in 1893, located at Skagway. Removed to Juneau in 1905 where he has resided ever since. City Attorney of Juneau. March 20, 1912 nominated at Valdez by the Democrats as candidate for Delegate.

"Although I have been nominated by the Democrats and will canvass Alaska as their candidate, yet if elected, will not be the Delegate of the Democratic party, but the Delegate of Alaska. The delegate from a territory has no vote and can have no influence in either raising or lowering the tariff, or in shaping the financial or diplomatic policy or other policies of the nation except as they may relate to Alaska. He is what the name implies, a delegate or Agent. He is not, strictly speaking, a member of Congress. Alaska has needs that must be attended to, and it is time to put an end to quarreling and have her wants looked after. Alaska can best be served in Congress by a Democrat, for he would be in accord with the dominant party. An independent in Congress is unaffiliated, unattached and is handicapped no matter how able, honest or earnest he may be. If elected, I purpose to represent all Alaska without regard to locality and to work for her best interests irrespective of party politics." —(R. W. Jennings' speech accepting the nomination.)

The Burden of Age.
I know of little better worth remembering as we grow old than what pleased us while we were young. With the memory of the kind words once spoken come back the still kinder looks of those who spoke them; and, better than all, that early feeling of budding manhood, when there was neither fear nor distrust. Alas, these are the things, and not weak eyes and tottering limbs, which form the burden of old age. Oh, if we could only go on believing, go on trusting, go on hoping to the last, who would shed tears for the bygone feats of his youthful days, when the spirit that evoked them lived young and vivid as before?—Charles Lever.

Another Horse

Another horse for J. C. Epsley arrived Tuesday evening on the Spokane and will be used for hauling slabs in place of the "only" horse that is now on the retired list. Endless and undying praise, monuments and medals should be Joe's lot henceforth for by this one swoop he has placed us a horse ahead of any persons calling Wrangell a one-horse town and citizens will remember the fact and in the future give all such persons a horse-laugh.

Capt. Johansen Standing By

Capt. Johansen, of the Duckland, is experiencing all the unpleasant incidents of shipwreck that his high and mighty dry position on the summit of a Stikine River sand bar affords. Before the river raises sufficient to float the ship off the bar where she grounded with the Boy Scout party the versatile mariner may have time to gather data for an Alaska Crusoe story that will so far outclass Defoe's tale that provided it is accompanied by proper affidavits may be used by the Wide World Magazine. The least that can be said is that it is a poor position for an honest man to be stranded in and every citizen hopes the Stikine will relent soon and return the Captain to the city where his welcome is waiting.

Cook Island Laws.
There are some strange laws in the Cook Islands, in the eastern Pacific. The population is Maori, and each island legislates for itself. The island council of Manihiki, one of the group, has in force an ordinance to regulate village life within the island. It begins by re-enacting "the ancient law of Manihiki as to dogs" and sentencing to death any dogs on the island. Pigs are not to wander at large, and any person going about after 9 p. m. may be arrested and taken to the courthouse to explain his reason for being abroad. No debt incurred by a native inhabitant is to be recoverable in any court. Selling or giving intoxicating liquor to any native is punishable with a $50 fine.

Why Hens Don't Lay in Winter.
I have found it very difficult to make people understand that a hen cannot make eggs and feathers at the same time. She can lay while she is shedding her feathers, because there is then no drain on her system for any other purpose. But when the new coat of feathers is started she quits, simply because she cannot do double duty—make feathers and eggs at the same time. When people learn this fact they will not expect eggs from a hen that is growing a coat of feathers. And then they may also learn how to manage their hatching and feeding so as to get eggs in the late fall and winter, when they want them badly.—Farm and Fireside.

MUSIC.

There is something marvelous in music. I might almost say that music is in itself a marvel. Its position is somewhere between the region of thought and that of phenomena, a glimmering medium between mind and matter, related to both and yet differing from either—spiritual and yet requiring rhythm, material and yet independent of space.—Heinrich Heine.

Making of Character.

To endure injustice without answering it with hatred, to endure grief without having the spirit broken, to endure disappointment and yet to go on cheerfully—these things make character.

The Family Meal.

I consider the family meal to be something much more sacred than merely an act of satisfying hunger. To me it is the meeting ground of all family joys and all family sympathies. —Professor Von Herkomer.

Consideration.

"If anybody gave you tainted money would you keep it yourself or send it to the foreign missions?"

"Keep it myself, of course. Would you have me spread infection?" —Baltimore American.

Not a Dandy.

The Bucoille Customer—Young man, I want a dark gray tie. The Shop Assistant—Yessir. For half mourning? The Bucoille Customer—"Ain't mornin' be blowed! When I puts on a tie I puts it on for the day!" —London Sketch.

Perfectly Easy.

Henry—You don't mean to say that you got two counterfeit half dollars in one week? What did you do with them? James—Left them in my pocket over night, and my wife did the rest. —Philadelphia Telegraph.

Meant What She Said.

Mrs. Wise—Will you come home straight from the club tonight? Mr. Wise—You mean to come straight home. Mrs. Wise—No; I mean to come home straight—no zigzag walking. —New York American.

A Fitting Name.

"Why do they call Washington the City of Magnificent Distances?"

"Because," answered the disappointed office seeker, "it is such a long way between what you go after and what you get." —Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Tarantula.

The sting of the tarantula (a name derived from Tarento, a town in Italy), the most venomous of spiders, was popularly supposed to produce a disease called tarantism, which could be cured only by music or dancing, and the dance which cured it was called tarantella. You can see the peasants dance the tarantella now, but without waiting for spider bites.

The Soft Answer.

"Dear me, Mrs. Billinger, who would have thought of seeing you downtown? Are you shopping?"

"Oh, no. I'm hunting antelopes in South Africa." —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Rider Haggard's First Success.

The incident which inspired Sir Henry Rider Haggard's first successful venture in authorship is interesting. He and one of his brothers were riding in the train together from Norfolk to London. He bought "Treasure Island" to read in the train, finished it and said as he dropped it into his bag, "Well, I think I could write a better boys' story than that."

"If you think it's so easy as all that, why don't you try?" asked the skeptical relative.

"I will," he rejoined, and he did.

A few weeks afterward he had finished "King Solomon's Mines," of which 100,000 copies were sold during the first five years. —Pall Mall Gazette.

Now, Who Could Blame Him?

A thin little woman who couldn't have weighed a hundred stood on a corner with a heavy baby in her arms. The rest of her step-ladder family, ranging from three to seven, were grouped around her. She wanted to flag a motor bus, and a passer by saw her difficulty. He hailed one, put the tribe aboard and paid the fares, as the little woman's hands were so fully occupied with the fat baby. He was beginning to feel that glow over doing a decent thing decently when he heard a woman in the bus say:

"Look at that great big man allowing his poor little wife to carry that big child!"

Then he got sore. —Chicago Tribune.

The One Thing He Did.

"I remember an American at a ball in Monte Carlo," said an American actress. "His self-reliant Americanism stood out well amid the elegance of the counts and earls and grand dukes who were there. I overheard a Russian princess talking to him on the moonlit terrace. 'Do you dance?' she said. No; he didn't dance. 'Do you speak French?' No; he only spoke American. 'Do you play bridge?' No. The princess raised her aristocratic eyebrows. 'May I ask,' she said, 'what you do do?' 'I earn my own living,' said the American. The princess laughed gaily and approvingly. He was, and she knew it, the only man there who did."

Class Distinctions.

Traveling in a second class carriage, a gentleman had a little misunderstanding with a lady, the only occupant of the compartment besides himself, in reference to the opening of the window.

"You don't appear to know the difference between the second and third class," said the lady cuttingly.

"Oh, madam," replied he, "I am an old railway traveler. I know all the class distinctions. In the first class the passengers behave rudely to the guard; in the third the guards behave rudely to the passengers; in the second (with a bow to his fellow passenger) the passengers behave rudely to each other." —London Answers.

THE AFFECTIONS.

Young men and women sometimes assert flippantly that to deceive or play with the feelings of others is fair enough and does no special harm. Whether it vitally injures a person's life to have his or her affections trifled with may be a question. But there is no question whatever as to the effect upon the trifle. "There is no playing fast or loose with truth in any game without growing the worse for it." —Charles Dickens.
